The Opportunity

Located at 7502 Apperson Street in Tujunga, California, this well-maintained three-unit apartment building offers an ideal blend of space, functionality, and long-term upside. Each of the three units features a spacious 3-bedroom / 3-bathroom townhome-style layout, a highly desirable configuration that consistently attracts strong tenant demand. Every unit includes two dedicated parking spaces, in-unit washer and dryer hookups, and the units are individually metered for water, gas, and electricity, with tenants responsible for paying trash removal, allowing for efficient expense control and straightforward management. The generous unit sizes, functional layouts, and separate utility metering make this asset particularly appealing to both investors seeking stable income and owner-users looking to occupy one unit while generating rental income from the others.

Situated in the Tujunga / Sunland submarket, the property benefits from a quieter, residential feel while remaining conveniently connected to the greater Los Angeles area. The neighborhood is known for its proximity to the Angeles National Forest, local parks, and hiking trails, offering a lifestyle appeal that continues to draw long-term residents. Nearby access to major corridors provides an easy commute to Burbank, Glendale, and the San Fernando Valley, while nearby retail, schools, and community amenities support strong rental fundamentals.

INVESTMENT HIGHLIGHTS

Property Highlights

- Townhome-Style 3BR/2BA Units with Strong Tenant Appeal: All three units feature spacious 3-bedroom / 3-bathroom townhome-style layouts, in-unit washer/dryer hookups, and two dedicated parking spaces per unit, a highly desirable combination that supports long-term tenancy and premium rents.
- Efficient, Low-Expense Operating Structure: The property is individually metered for water, gas, and electricity, with tenants responsible for trash removal, allowing for clean expense pass-throughs and improved NOI stability.
- Below-Market Rents with Clear Upside to Market: In-place rents average approximately $3,175 per unit, compared to estimated market rents of $3,500, providing a straightforward path to income growth without major capital investment.
- Quiet Residential Location with Strong Regional Connectivity: Situated in the Tujunga / Sunland submarket, the property offers a suburban residential feel while remaining conveniently connected to Glendale, Burbank, and the San Fernando Valley, supporting consistent tenant demand.

Location Highlights

- Desirable Tujunga / Sunland Submarket: Located in a low-density, residential pocket of Tujunga / Sunland, an area known for long-term tenancy, limited new multifamily supply, and strong renter demand driven by lifestyle and affordability relative to nearby Glendale and Burbank.
- Proximity to Major Employment Centers: The property offers convenient access to Glendale, Burbank, and the San Fernando Valley, providing tenants with efficient commutes to major employment hubs, studios, healthcare facilities, and corporate centers.
- Lifestyle-Oriented Neighborhood Appeal: Residents benefit from close proximity to the Angeles National Forest, local parks, and hiking trails, creating a unique blend of suburban living and outdoor recreation that supports tenant retention.
- Strong Access to Daily Amenities and Transportation: Nearby access to retail, grocery stores, schools, and major thoroughfares enhances day-to-day convenience, reinforcing stable occupancy and long-term rental demand.

Neighborhood Overview | Sunland-Tujunga

Sunland-Tujunga, nestled in the northeastern edge of Los Angeles, blends small-town charm with mountain-adjacent living. Surrounded by the Angeles National Forest, the neighborhood offers a peaceful, semi-rural atmosphere prized by families, creatives, and outdoor enthusiasts. Residents enjoy access to hiking trails, equestrian areas, and expansive canyon views, while still benefiting from city services and proximity to Burbank, Glendale, and central Los Angeles.

The area maintains a tight-knit, community-driven identity with an emphasis on homeownership and long-term residency, helping foster stable housing demand. For multifamily investors, Sunland-Tujunga presents an opportunity to serve renters who prioritize space, nature, and quiet over urban density—positioning properties like 7502 Apperson St as rare finds with strong occupancy potential and reliable tenant retention.

Local Market Overview

Tujunga sits at the foothills of the San Gabriel Mountains and offers a unique mix of suburban-residential calm with ready access to the broader Los Angeles region. The neighborhood draws residents who value outdoor amenities, hillside views, and a more relaxed pace than denser urban LA — appealing for multifamily tenants seeking balance between amenity access and tranquility. The local housing demand benefits from a stable population base and strong homeownership orientation, which tends to support sustained occupancy levels even as the broader LA market experiences swings.

Given Tujunga's established community character and relative stability, a well-positioned multifamily asset such as 7502 Apperson St could attract both long-term renters and residents seeking a residential alternative to pricier coastal or central-city rental zones, offering investor appeal in both cash flow and occupancy predictability.

Economic Drivers

Tujunga's economic foundation is shaped by its position as a residential enclave within reach of major Los Angeles employment hubs. While not a primary job center itself, the neighborhood benefits from commuter access to Burbank's media district, Glendale's healthcare and retail sectors, and broader San Fernando Valley industries. Many residents work in construction, education, public services, and small business trades, reflecting a diverse, middle-income workforce.

The community's economic stability is bolstered by a high rate of homeownership and relatively low population turnover, which helps maintain consistent demand for local goods and services. Though not heavily commercial, Tujunga supports a strong base of independent retail, family-owned businesses, and essential services. Nearby infrastructure—including the 210 freeway and public transit connections—enhances access to job corridors, while ongoing investment in Sunland-Tujunga civic improvements and hillside development controls preserve both livability and long-term housing appeal. This combination of commuter convenience and local continuity supports steady economic conditions favorable to multifamily performance.

LOS ANGELES, CA

Greater Los Angeles stands as a dynamic economic and cultural hub, with an estimated 2024 population of over 9,757,000—up more than 26,000 from 2023—driven by international migration and a recovering job market attracting younger, urban-oriented professionals. Los Angeles' continued draw as a global gateway underscores its appeal for long-term residence and investment.

The metro shows significant economic scale, with a 2024 median household income of about $91,000, rising steadily on the strength of high-wage industries like tech, healthcare, and entertainment. While housing affordability is a challenge, high incomes and wealth concentration sustain consumer spending and housing demand, making the diverse market resilient for developers and investors.

TRANSPORTATION

The Ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach form the largest container port complex in the Western Hemisphere, processing over 10 million TEUs in 2024, including 743,417 containers in the latest monthly count. Serving as the main entry point for goods from Asia—especially China, at about 40% of total volume—the ports anchor one of the nation's largest logistics and warehousing hubs, supporting over 1 million regional jobs.

Once goods arrive, they move quickly across North America via extensive air, rail, and road networks. Los Angeles International Airport, one of the world's busiest, handled over 75 million passengers and 2.7 million metric tons of cargo in 2023, ranking among the top five U.S. freight airports.

The freeway system—including I-5, I-10, I-405, and US-101—links Southern California to major West Coast and national corridors, supporting both commuting and long-haul trucking. Public transit is expanding, with the Los Angeles Metro operating over 100 miles of rail lines and upcoming projects like the D Line Extension and Inglewood Transit Connector, while Metrolink connects the city to surrounding counties, boosting regional workforce mobility.

SPORTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Los Angeles offers one of the most vibrant and globally recognized entertainment ecosystems in the world, blending film, music, art, cuisine, and nightlife. The city welcomed over 49 million visitors in 2023, Los Angeles' vast entertainment scene supports its massive tourism sector and attracts a young, experience-driven population, fueling long-term rental demand and urban development in cultural hotspots.
